THIS IS MCB ONE

Back in June of 1944 the Marines made a landing on the South Pacific island of New Georgia. They knew the Japs were strongly entrenched and expected stubborn resistance on this vital piece of real estate. The first person they met walked down the beach toward them, waved and said to the Marine Commander, «Colonel, the Navy Seabees are always happy to welcome the Marines to enemy held territory». This lone figure was a CEC Lieutenant who had led a Seabee Detachment on the island to survey the jungle for airfield sites.

We have all heard of similiar exploits of the World War II Seabees and perhaps we have heard all about the beginnings of the Seabees, so why don't we review and get the history of our Battalion.

MCB ONE was commissioned October 20, 1949 in time for a brief training period before joining with components of the Fleet, Marines, Army, and Air Force for operation PORTEX. This operation consisted of a concentrated assault maneuver on the island of Vieques, Puerto Rico. It was here that the Battalion received the first of an impressive series of «Well Done» for her part in the assault and the subsequent rebuilding of the island and also the strengthening of defenses. After this rigorous shakedown period there followed a series of operations in such varied places as Guantanamo, Cuba; Hamilton, Bermuda, and Port Lyautey, French Morocco. These deployments averaged about five months and were followed by a rest and leave period at our home port of Davisville, Rhode Island where in true Seabee fashion, the men played as hard and as fast as they had worked in the preceeding months. The objectives during the foreign deployments were widely varied, and in many cases, highly specialized.

One of the more gratifying operations was the resurfacing of the catchment basins at the Naval Station in Hamilton, Bermuda. This job guaranteed a continued supply of water for fellow sailors on the island.

In addition to our full strength deployments, the Battalion has been responsible for many smaller but equally important tasks. Detachments have been flung far and wide—often working under unfavorable and haz — arduous conditions to gain their objectives.

The history of MCB ONE is distinguished. The Officers and men of the Battalion can be justly proud of the «Can Do» spirit that has been so vital to, and characteristic of, «The First and the Finest.»

This is a history covering two years of hard work by MCB-1. The real value of this work may never be mentioned specifically in other history books. Nevertheless, by our toil in the hot sun and slippery mud at Guantanamo Bay, Argentia, Rota, Sigonella and Port Lyautey we have strengthened the Navy's power to win a war and thereby have helped to prevent one.

This is a story also of our lighter moments of the last two years, the beach parties at Windmill Beach and the tug-of-war at the Rota field day.

And lastly, this is a reminder of the wonderful men with whom we have served, who have given unselfishly of their time and efforts for their Country and the Navy, and to keep MCB-1 "The First and the Finest".

As each of you look back through the pages of this cruise book, you will revive memories of many construction tasks well done and friendships made on these past two deployments. In remembering the building which you have done, you will derive satisfaction from the knowledge that you have left each deployment site better than it was when you arrived. By having an active part in construction you are now better trained to stand ready to accept a larger role in the defense of our Country and the Free World. This cruise book will grow in value to you through the years because it is portable proof of service well performed.

PAST MCB ONE OFFICERS

CDR. J. W. GORMAN

LCDR. J. C. ALLEN

To the officers and men whose efforts and achievements carried on the fine tradition of MCB ONE during the 1959-1960 deployments, I send greetings!

From the time of the Battalion's commissioning in 1949, it has earned an excellent reputation for its high quality construction; military and technical training; and esprit de corps. The construction completed at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba in 1959 and at Rota, Spain in 1960 together with the record made during the Marine Training at Camp Lejeune, added to MCB ONE's prestige. The great number of men promoted during these deployments demonstrated the high level of training, education, and morale. The success of the "People to People" program in Spain added further to the Battalion's excellent reputation.

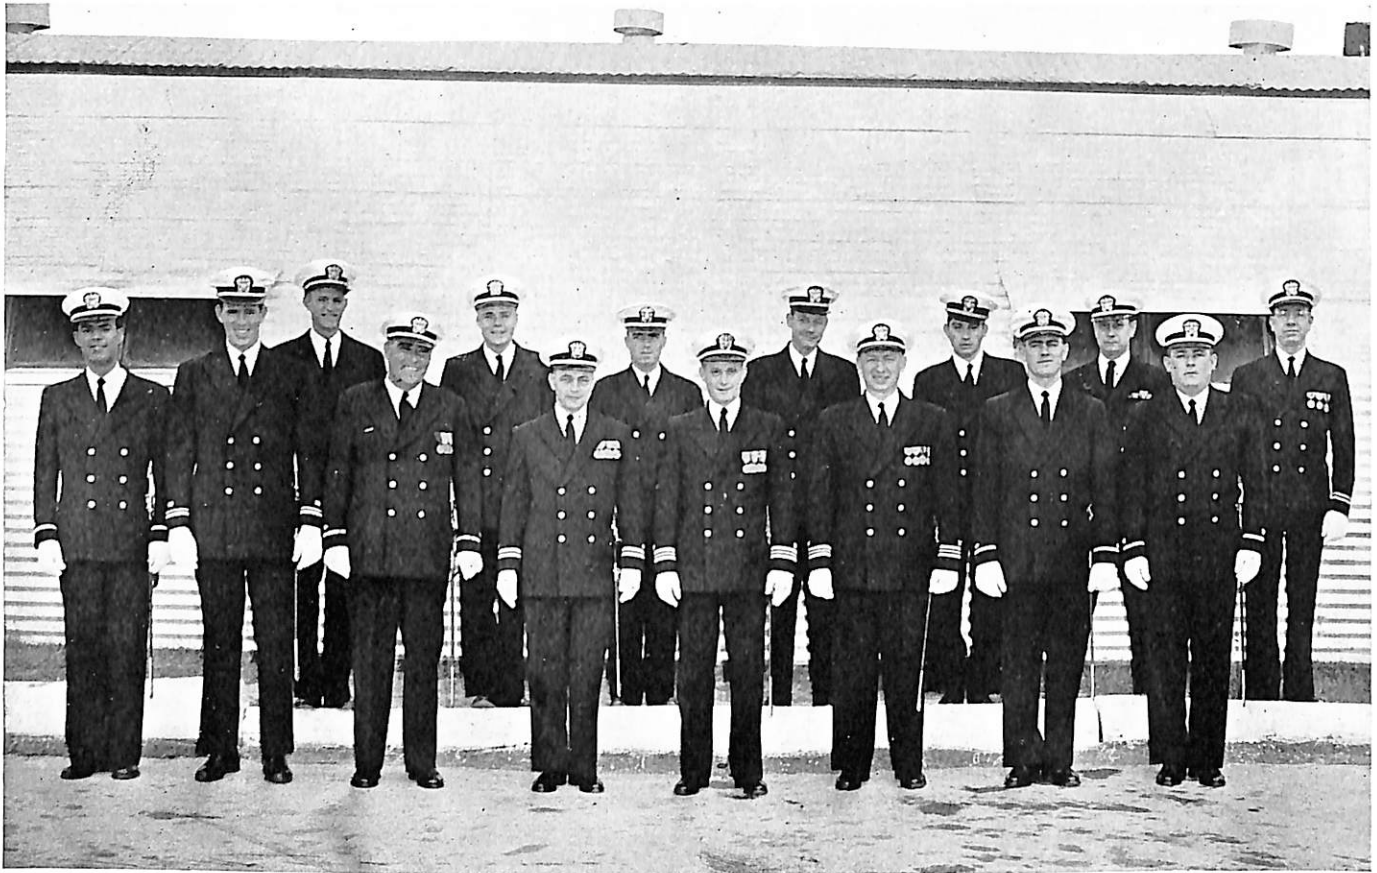

The fine record of MCB ONE has been achieved only through the combined efforts, hard work, and cooperation of all, in the true spirit of the SeaBees, and the tradition of MCB ONE, the First and the Finest.

During my tour as your Commanding Officer I had many gratifying associations with all of you. This cruise book will be a pleasant reminder of our deployments and achievements together.

«WELCOME TO CUBA»

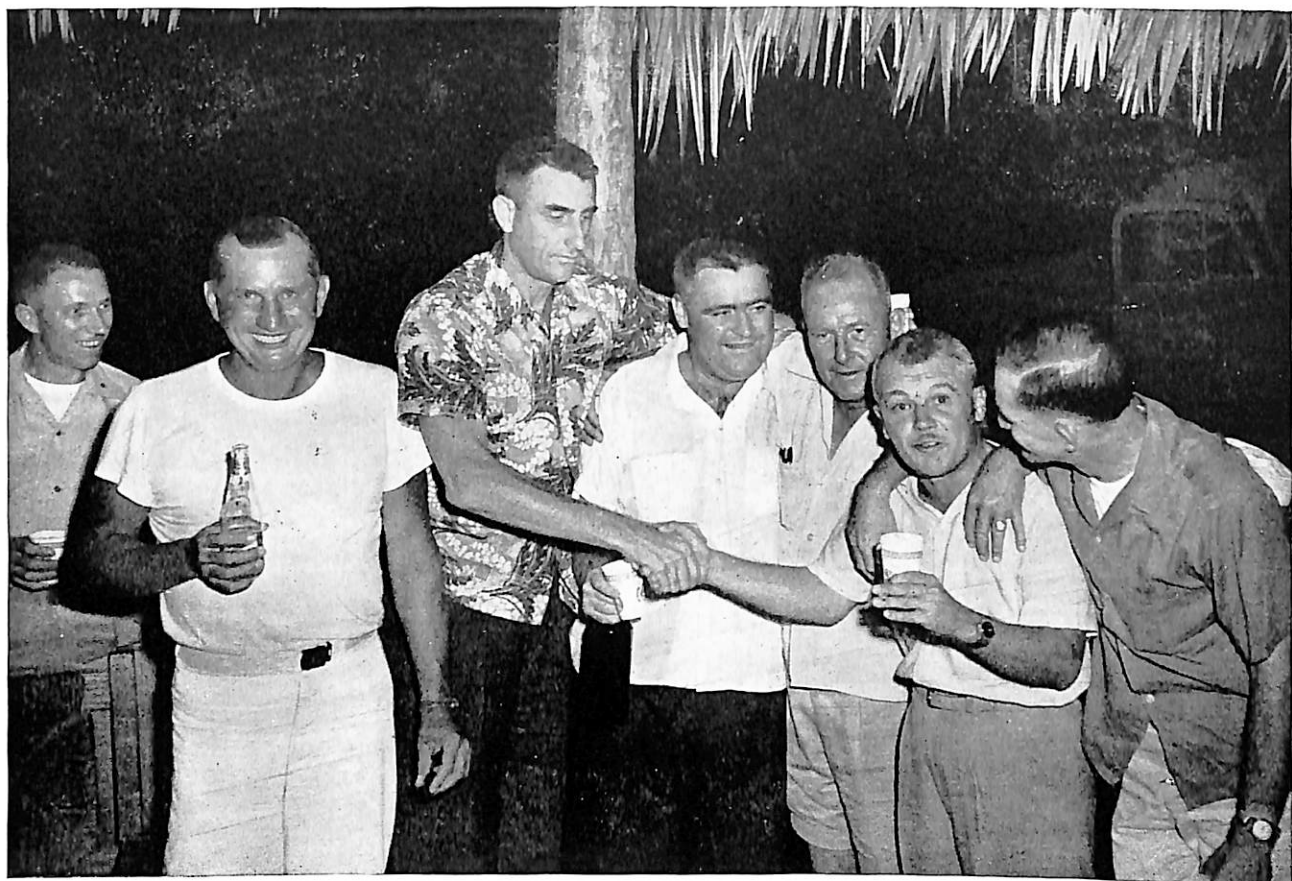

In March of 1959, the Battalion left for its second successive deployment to «Sunny Gitmo». The only real thing in our favor was that the country and the base were not new to us. Cuba, at that time, was undergoing a period of internal turmoil and the new party of power was still in its infancy. Still there were signs that many things were destined to change, and wow! what a change! Optimistically, we had hoped for a little bit of off-base liberty but these thoughts were soon dismissed. Oh well, what could Cuba really offer that the Naval Base didn't already have plenty of — Beaches, parties, open-air theaters, golf courses, clubs, and the thing most plentiful on all of Cuba— the sun. It was a deployment of hard work, hard play, and more hard work, highlighted by a change of command ceremony and the fact that we took the «OUTSTANDING BATTALION» award away from MCB FOUR. Commander Gorman was relieved by Commander Jung and when we came home we had a new tan, a new skipper, and we were ready for new adventures.

SUNNY SPAIN

Nowhere except in Sunny Spain can anyone find such diverse activities and picturesque landscapes as the Battalion found during its deployment at Rota. Fiestas, exciting bull fights, lazy siestas and sightseeing became second nature to all the SeaBees. Being stationed in Southern Spain meant, of course, witnessing time and again the well known Flamenco Dances, and sampling the finest Spanish wines.

LEAVING D'VILLE U. S. A., NEXT STOP, SPAIN!!

ARRIVING ROTA, SPAIN, 29 MAY 1960

SEABEE CAMP AREA JUNE 1960

MCB-1's deployment to Rota began in March 1960 with the arrival of its advance party to lay out the initial stages of the work and to improve and set up the SeaBee Camp at «Silver City».

The main body of the Battalion arrived on 29 May 1960 to begin its Rota deployment. The assigned construction plan primarily consisted of constructing new facilities for the Rota Magazines. These facilities included 11 new Magazines, a Guard House, Battery Charging Building, Vehicle Shed, Inert Storehouse, Guard Tower, Construction Shed, 2 Sentry Booths, and extensive perimeter lighting, fence, road, and utilities installations. The basic construction plan also required construction and improvement of many facilities in the SeaBee Camp, operation of the concrete and asphalt batching plants, and exercising of mobilization equipment. Upon arrival the workload was increased by the necessity of completing certain facilities not completed by MCB-6 and the Magazine project was increased by requiring an addition to the existing AUW Building, and additional work to be done to the Guard House, Battery Charging, and Inert Storehouse buildings.

Additionally the Battalion was assigned, in late October, the task of construction new Aircraft Maintenance Facilities consisting of 35,000 square meters of new parking apron for aircraft and refuelers, construction of 4 shop quonsets placed on 6 foot side walls, and construction of a quonset hut administration building including utilities and access paving. During the course of the deployment, the Battalion also sent detachments to Sigonella, Sicily, and Port Lyautey.

The Battalion Adjutant read the Citation which stated to each:

«For heroic conduct during the period March 1 to March 5, 1960, as a member of the rescue unit for Naval activities, Port Lyautey, Kenitra, Morocco, at the time of the Agadir, Morocco, earthquake disaster. During this period he participated actively in hazardous rescue operations. Without regard for his personal safety or well-being, he repeatedly endangered his life by entering the ruins in search of victims. Utilizing hand tools, he worked in spaces so restricted and so difficult to enter that he was required to crawl, tunnel, or otherwise work his way to entrapped persons.»
