COMMAND COMPOSITION

1. Mission. CAPE ST. GEORGE is a baseline IV Ticonderoga Class guided missile cruiser, equipped with the most advanced technology and weaponry ever put to sea. The twin screw, twin rudder, gas turbine powered, 9400-ton combatant features the AEGIS Combat System. This system integrates and automates in real time the functions of detection, control, engagement and command in the three basic warfare modes: Anti-Aircraft Warfare (AAW), Anti-Submarine Warfare (ASW) and Anti-Surface Warfare (ASUW). The mission capabilities of the ship are:

a. To operate effectively in the presence of air, surface and sub-surface threats with strike, anti-submarine or amphibious forces while having the capability for surface warfare operations and protection of other task forces and convoys against air and sub-surface sustained high threats.

2. Organizational Structure

a. CAPE ST. GEORGE is part of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet under administrative command of Commander, Cruiser Destroyer Group EIGHT (Rear Admiral Harold W. Gehman and Rear Admiral Daniel J. Murphy, Jr.). Operationally, CAPE ST. GEORGE is part of the USS DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER (CVN 69) Battle Group (IKEBATGRU) under operational control of Commander, Second Fleet from 1 January 1994 to 2 November 94. On 3 November 1994, operational control shifted to Commander, SIXTH Fleet with the ship's maiden deployment to the Mediterranean Sea.

b. The ship's internal organization (as of 31 December 94) was as shown in Figure 1.

3. Units under operational/administrative control. None.

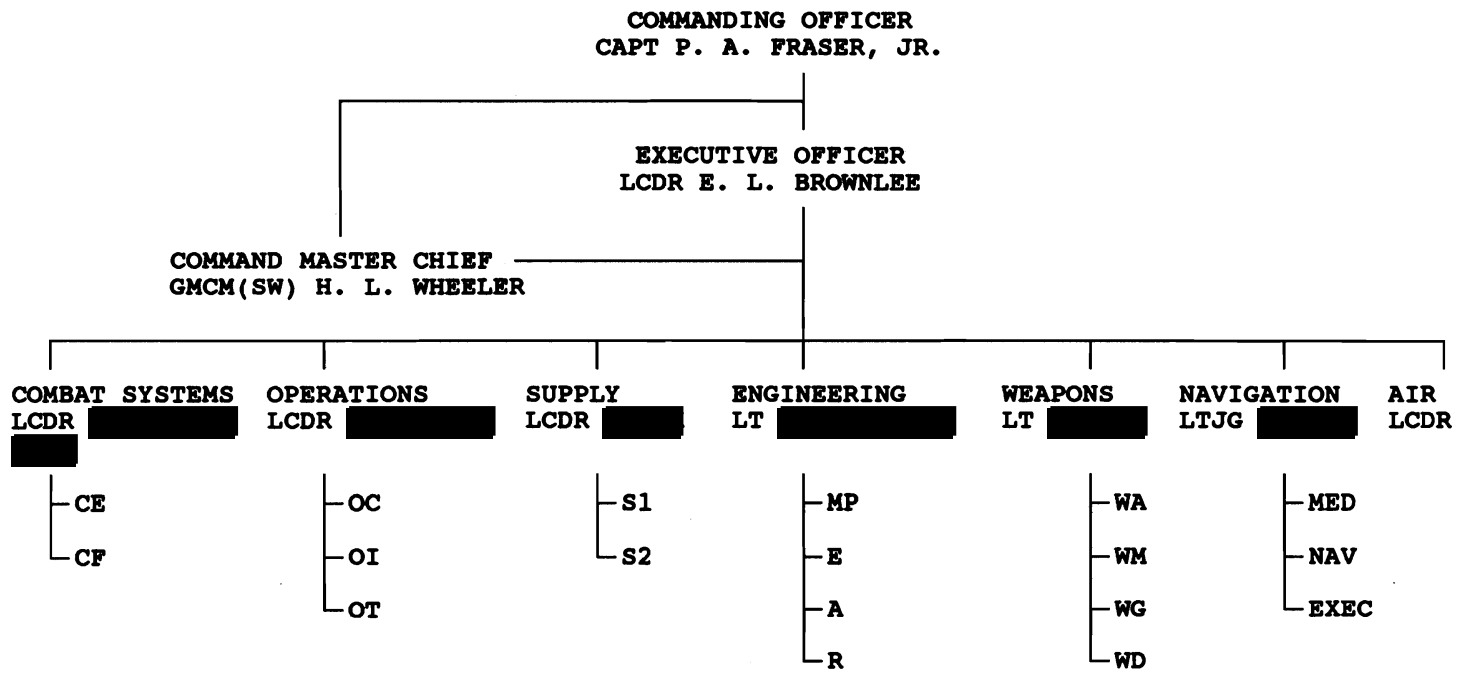

4. Permanent duty station. Norfolk, Virginia.

5. Aircraft assigned. The "VIPERS" of Helicopter Squadron (Light) FOUR EIGHT, Detachment ONE embarked CAPE ST. GEORGE as follows during 1994.

Dates	Aircraft	Event

USS CAPE ST. GEORGE (CG 71)
1994 COMMAND HISTORY NARRATIVE

1994 was an extremely busy and challenging year for CAPE ST. GEORGE. The ship completed Post Shakedown Availability; conducted many at-sea operations, exercises, system tests and weapons firings. In addition, we finished all pre-deployment training requirements and Battle Group workups. It was also a year of change: a new Executive Officer reported in June, Captain Fraser relieved Captain Nash in August, many of the ship's commissioning Plankowners transferred or retired and all six departments received new Department Heads. The ship sailed on her maiden Mediterranean Deployment in October 1994 and ended the year in port Naples, Italy. Throughout the year, CAPE ST. GEORGE set new standards of excellence and maintained her reputation as the "CAN DO" AEGIS cruiser of the Atlantic Fleet.

The year began with a transit to Ingalls Shipbuilding in Pascagoula, Mississippi for a 10-week Post Shakedown Availability (PSA). PSA gave Ingalls, the ship's builder, the opportunity to repair problems detected since sail away in May of 1993, install/upgrade systems and perform scheduled engineering/combat systems maintenance and perform a hull cleaning. This was also the last chance for any major upgrades while the ship was still under SCN (new construction) funding.

The big ticket item during PSA was the installation of the Cooperative Engagement Capability (CEC). CEC is a revolutionary new system that enhances Battle Group Anti-Air Warfare performance through real-time fusion of sensor and weapon control data between platforms. CEC passes track data between platforms, enabling ships to engage tracks not held by ownship sensors. Previously installed on EISENHOWER, KIDD and ANZIO, CAPE ST. GEORGE is the last ship to receive CEC in the current testing/development schedule. CAPE ST. GEORGE benefited from previous installation lessons learned, particularly from ANZIO.

In addition to CEC, other major installations during PSA included the Tomahawk Block III upgrade, Passive Countermeasures Installation (PCMS), International Maritime Satellite (INMARSAT) Telephone System, Navigation Telex (NAVTEX), SSES Phase I Upgrade, Battle Group Cellular, Naval Tactical Command System-Afloat and the AN/SRN-25 Electronic Navigation Set. CAPE ST. GEORGE also received a fiber optic Local Area Network (LAN), which connects computers and printers in 55 separate compartments. The Naval Surface Warfare Center PSA Final Report and CAPE ST. GEORGE News Release 1-94 in enclosure (6) provide detailed information on the work accomplished during PSA.

On 16 March, CAPE ST. GEORGE conducted an At-Sea Trial to confirm satisfactory operation of the various ship's engineering and combat systems. National Hot Rod Association (NHRA) drag racer K. C. "Hollywood" Spurlock joined the crew for the day underway in the Gulf of Mexico and toured the ship. His visit was recorded by a camera crew from The Nashville Network (TNN) Sports, the rough footage is provided in enclosure (6).

CAPE ST. GEORGE left Pascagoula on March 18, enroute to the Key West OPAREA to rendezvous with USS DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER and USS KIDD. As a test meant to the high quality of our CEC installation, we successfully established CEC connectivity on the first try without encountering any of the problems of past installations. Many developmental goals were met with this underway period, preparing the ships for the upcoming CEC live missile firing exercises during the summer. The rendezvous also provided our first opportunity to work with a carrier, and our bridge teams received valuable shiphandling and station-keeping training. The Bi-Weekly SITREP Three message in enclosure (6) gives details of this underway period. The ship also made a four day stop in Port Everglades, Florida on our transit back to our Norfolk homeport.

Upon returning to Norfolk the ship went straight to the Craney Island Deperming Facility. The process went extremely well with the crew turning a three day evolution into a day and a half evolution. Keys to success were making preparations in advance, all hands participation (including khaki) and good weather. Boat support for the crew to go on liberty from USS SHENANDOAH was superb.

From 5-7 April, CAPE ST. GEORGE conducted an ammunition onload at Naval Weapons Station, Yorktown and loaded all required shipfill ammunition for COMPTUEX and CEC MISSILEX. On the return transit to Norfolk, we conducted a Dependents Cruise, which included a voice tour down the York River and a gun shoot. We stayed in Norfolk through 18 April, beginning the cycle of installations, training, certifications and inspections that would fill every inport period until deployment. We closed out April with ten days underway for CEC Underway Test Six and the chance to operate with our first Helicopter Detachment. The CEC Underway Six Observations message in enclosure (6) details this underway period.

May began with a maintenance availability with USS SHENANDOAH, which enabled us to get some key maintenance jobs completed before our next six week underway period. Once again the time inport was hectic, with assist visits and the opportunity to show off the ship and CEC to many visiting VIP's. The crew developed an exciting warfare scenario for our visiting guests, complete with 1MC announcements, a simulated GQ and playback of a realistic TBMD scenario on the AEGIS Large Screen Displays in Combat Information Center (CIC).

CAPE ST. GEORGE got underway on May 19 for six weeks to conduct a VANDALEX, ASW Proficiency Training, Comprehensive Training Unit Exercise (COMPTUEX) and CEC MISSILEX. The focus of the COMPTUEX was warfare team training in support of the Composite Warfare Commander (CWC) organization. CAPE ST. GEORGE worked in primary and secondary warfare areas with other IKEBATGRU ships. During this phase of training, we began to look beyond the lifelines and developed warfare skills in coordination with other units while continuing to increase our skill within the lifelines. CAPE ST. GEORGE News Release 2-94 in enclosure (6), and the Bi-Weekly SITREPs and post-exercise reports in enclosure (6) describe these exercises in detail.

On 20 June, CAPE ST. GEORGE made naval history with the first successful SM-2 engagement using CEC. Using ANZIO's AN/SPY-1B(V) remote track data, the ship successfully intercepted the target. Over the course of the next four days, CAPE ST. GEORGE fired five more SM-2 missiles, confirming the validity of the CEC concept in various threat environments. During this underway period, LCDR Edward Brownlee relieved the commissioning Executive Officer, LCDR Michael Mahon, who transferred on to CINCUSNAVEUR as Flag Secretary. LCDR Mahon paid the crew his compliments in a farewell Plan of the Day note (19 June 1994) and with an emotional get-together on the Flight Deck. Following the MISSILEX, CAPE ST. GEORGE transited to VACAPES where she participated in the TMDEX Phase I on 30 June.

July provided a welcome relief from the rigors of sea and a chance for the crew to take some well-deserved time off. Three leave periods allowed each crewmember to take up to ten days off. Again we faced the myriad of assist visits and stampede of civilian technicians with the TARGET and CSRR teams on board, yet the crew took it all in stride. They take special pride in their equipment and spaces; contractor personnel often described CAPE ST. GEORGE as the best ship on the waterfront both in appearance and material condition. Attesting to her superb readiness, COMIKEBATGRU nominated CAPE ST. GEORGE for the SURFLANT Self-Sufficient Ship of the Quarter Award for both the Third and Fourth Quarters of CY-94.

In August, we got underway for Joint Task Force Phase I/II and learned how to best employ the capabilities of AEGIS in the Amphibious Operating Area. Integrating with the "gators" was a new experience that provided many new challenges and opportunities. During the integration we studied how to employ our AN/SPY-1B(V) Radar to optimize Anti-Air Warfare defense of the Amphibious Readiness Group. We also trained our watch teams and LAMPS crews in the Wide Area Surface Picture (WASP) tactic, and gained valuable insight on the difficulties and benefits of this new tactic. The learning curve was steep, but by the end of the War-at-Sea exercise, both the Amphib and CRUDES teams had a much greater understanding and apprent on to relieve CAPT Gary Zwirschitz as SURFLANT Chief of Staff under VADM Joseph P. Reason, Jr.

September included more pre-deployment preps and Fleet Exercise 95-1. Conducted in the Virginia Capes and Cherry Point OPAREAS, FLEETEX provided advanced training that focused on coordinated IKEBATGRU and ARG/MEU warfare skills in all warfare areas. Our FLEETEX included some last minute, unplanned changes when the President ordered U.S. Forces into Haiti in support of Opeent on to relieve CAPT Gary Zwirschitz as SURFLANT Chief of Staff under VADM Joseph P. Reason, Jr.

September included more pre-deployment preps and Fleet Exercise 95-1. Conducted in the Virginia Capes and Cherry Point OPAREAS, FLEETEX provided advanced training that focused on coordinated IKEBATGRU and ARG/MEU warfare skills in all warfare areas. Our FLEETEX included some last minute, unplanned changes when the President ordered U.S. Forces into Haiti in support of Operation Restore Democracy. With that order, EISENHOWER was retasked to transport troops, aircraft and equipment to Haiti, leaving the remaining battle group/amphibious readiness group ships to do FLEETEX independent of the CV.

COMDESRON THREE TWO (CAPT Kevin Cosgriff) and his staff embarked on CAPE ST. GEORGE to oversee the exercise. For FLEETEX, CAPE ST. GEORGE stole the show. With the staff embarked we assumed duties as Alternate CWC, AAWC, ASUWC, ASWC, C2WC, LEC, TLAM Launch Area Coordinator and GREENCROWN. In addition to warfare commander duties, we also focused on developing value added testing for many different warfighting aspects. Our FLEETEX observations and lessons learned are reflected in the messages of interest in enclosure (6).

Following completion of FLEETEX, CAPE ST. GEORGE returned to Norfolk for Planned Overseas Movement (POM) Stand-down. This time off gave the crew one last chance to take leave and get their personal affairs in order. The month went by quickly though and soon it was 18 October, and everyone returned to get the ship underway for a day-long sea trial to ensure all systems were fully operational. The many overtime hours and superb help received from NAVSEA and our Aegis Homeport Team paid off; CAPE ST. GEORGE sailed on her maiden deployment CASREP free.

In September, we also found ourselves highlighted in Surface Warfare Magazine for our participation in the development of CEC. A copy of that issue is in enclosure (6).

The trip across the Atlantic was uneventful. Once across, we rendezvoused with ships of the French and Spanish navies to conduct a PASSEX. CAPE ST. GEORGE News Release 7-94 documents this event in enclosure (6). We then shifted operational control to COMSIXTHFLT on our entry into the Mediterranean.

After conducting a turnover with the departing cruisers, SAN JACINTO and Thomas S. GATES, CAPE ST. GEORGE proceeded on to our first port call in Soudha Bay, Crete. Enroute Soudha, we received Joint Chiefs of Staff tasking to proceed at best speed to the Aegean Sea to watch the situation there given the current tension between Greece and Turkey over a territorial waters issue. CAPE ST. GEORGE News Release 8-94 in enclosure (6) and the message traffic in enclosures (6) describes this situation and our participation. While in the Aegean, we had the pleasure of working with three ships of the Korean Navy in a two day PASSEX, and received the following Bravo Zulu from VADM Joseph Prueher, COMSIXTHFLT, "CAPE ST. GEORGE is proving once again that a well-trained crew, on short notice, with only general guidance, can proceed independently into an area of intense international interest and superbly represent our Navy and nation. Your actions and reports have been exceptional. Keep up the great work."

When tensions eased in the Aegean, SIXTHFLT and the CJCS relieved us of our tasking and we proceeded in to Soudha Bay for our first liberty stop, 31 days after leaving homeport. We then relieved KIDD on station as Adriatic REDCROWN in support of Operations SHARP GUARD and DENY FLIGHT. We stayed in the Adriatic until 1 December when KIDD relieved us. CAPE ST. GEORGE then proceeded west to participate in African Eagle '94, an amphibious exercise with the Moroccan Ship Sidi Muhammad Ben Abdellas. CAPE ST. GEORGE News Release 9-94 describes our performance in African Eagle. The remainder of December included a five day port visit to Malaga, Spain, a transit east to relieve KIDD as REDCROWN and Christmas in the Adriatic (News Release 10-94).

CAPE ST. GEORGE's crew performed superbly throughout 1994, and set new standards of excellence in every exercise, evolution and event. Despite an extremely demanding OPTEMPO that included only nine of our first 71 days deployed inport, the crew maintained an unprecedented level of performance and readiness, remaining "Always Victorious."
